The American Chestnut Foundation Relocates National Headquarters to Asheville

Asheville, NC -- The American Chestnut Foundation's national headquarters is now located in Asheville, North Carolina—the heart of the natural range of the American chestnut tree.

Asheville, a mountain town of nearly 80,000 people has been the site of the Southern Appalachian Regional Office for the last several years and TACF has moved its offices into the United States Forest Service building located near the University of North Carolina-Asheville.

“We are very excited about this opportunity to move our headquarters to a town with such a rich historical connection to the American chestnut. With its proximity to Great Smoky Mountains National Park, the North Carolina Arboretum and less-than-a-two-hour drive to Meadowview—where our research farms are located—Asheville is an excellent location to begin our next 25 years of working to restore the American chestnut,” said Marshal Case, President and CEO of TACF.

In addition to the Forest Service, TACF share the building with staff from both the United States Fish and Wildlife Service and the Appalachian Trail Conservancy. The new headquarters officially opens February 9. For information about the new headquarters please call Meghan Jordan at 828-281-0047.

TACF's new headquarters address is 160 Zillicoa Street, Suite D, Asheville, NC 28801.

About TACF

The American Chestnut Foundation is a 501(c)3 non-profit organization with chapters in 17 states based in Asheville, NC. TACF was established in 1983 with the sole purpose of restoring this majestic tree to its native forests in the eastern United States, and the Foundation has supported the efforts of scientists who are working to develop a blight-resistant American chestnut. For more information about the Foundation, please visit our website at www.acf.org.
